Cataloging Videorecordings Defensively: Basics

Cataloging Defensively = Cataloging Carefully

- Be sure you search thoroughly
- When deriving a new record from an existing one, be sure that you make all of the changes to the record that convinced you a separate record was justified in the first place
- When editing an existing record, be sure that you never change the essential identity of an existing bibliographic record to something else
- Be sure that the coding and tagging are correct and complete
- Be sure to proofread the record
Cataloging Defensively = Cataloging Carefully

Be sure that the record is internally consistent, with coded data corresponding correctly to descriptive data, including:

- \textit{Ctry} and 260/264 subfield $a$
- \textit{Date 1} and 260/264 subfield $c$
- \textit{Form} coding for electronic resources, microforms, Braille, large print, when appropriate
- 006 to account for additional aspects of a resource, when appropriate
- 007 correctly reflecting physical characteristics, when appropriate Include an edition statement in field 250 if one is available

a) a word such as edition, issue, release, level, state, or update (or its equivalent in another language)

or

b) a statement indicating:

i) a difference in content

ii) a difference in geographic coverage

iii) a difference in language

iv) a difference in audience

v) a particular format or physical presentation

vi) a different date associated with the content

vii) a particular voice range or format of notated music
Edition Statements = Effective Differentiation
RDA 2.5.1.4 & AACR2 1.2B4, 7.2B3

For a resource lacking an edition statement but known to contain significant changes from other editions, supply an edition statement if important for identification or access.

The Marion Lake story: defeating the mighty phragmite, 2007-2013 / a film by Greta Schiller.

1 videodisc (28 min.) : sd., col. ; 4 3/4 in.
DVD.

The Marion Lake Story: Defeating the Mighty Phragmite tells a compelling tale of an ecological crisis: the complete degradation--and eventual restoration--of an 18-acre lake on the east end of Long Island NY that provides crucial habitat for migrating birds, rare turtles and other flora and fauna but is being choked to death by the invasive reed, the australis phragmite. Lori Luscher, a local resident who watched with growing alarm the gradual disappearance of the lake she grew up on, takes it upon herself to write an eradication grant request to the NY State Department of Environmental Conservation. The grant requires matching funds of $100,000, and so begins the long haul of seeking donations from residents and local environmental groups, and organizing those most American of community events--the yard sale and street fair and the town hall meeting. Neighbors are skeptical. The financial crisis threatens Lori's ability to raise the matching funds. The progress is slow--at times almost imperceptible. Confronted with such challenges, will the community hold together? From the first yard sale and eradication summer to the first blooms of replanted natives, we have been there with our cameras, following an exemplary local community pulling together to save the lake and restore it to a bio-diverse habitat for native flora and fauna. The result is an inspirational grassroots model for environmental restoration in action.
